Summary <ul style="list-style-type: none"> The aim of our consultation is to create meaningful engagement with local people and stakeholders to inform them about our proposals for change; actively listen to their feedback and ensure their feedback impacts the final decision. Our approach to consultation will be responsive and proportionate to those it will affect the most. Our work is guided by the seven best practice principles from The Consultation Institute: integrity; visibility; accessibility; transparency; disclosure; fair interpretation; publication. We are working to exceed best practice Both the plan and consultation document have been shaped through engagement and dialogue with stakeholders and partners. We have engaged with: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> JHOSC NHS Trusts Patient representation through PPAG and the PCRG OHSEL Comms and engagement group members We have a comprehensive plan of engagement, with the consultation document as the key source material. It will be supported by a range of other materials, both digital and printed, including a consultation hub, social media campaign, supporting materials and evidence. Our engagement activities include events targeted at specific groups and wider public events such as a Consultation Hearing.
Next Steps <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Consultation will launch on 5 December subject to agreement Our plans are flexible and we will be responsive to feedback throughout the period of the consultation
